

THE LITTLE BLACK GALLERY

In Colour

'Jimi Hendrix' by Gered Mankowitz

In Colour

13 January – 13 February 2010

The THE LITTLE BLACK GALLERY will be transformed into a display of colour in its first show of 2010.

Ever since the first colour photograph was taken in 1861 by James Clerk Maxwell it has revolutionised the way we take and look at photographs.

The gallery will present a mixed show of colour works from a range of photographers who have used colour in their work to maximum effect. The photographers include Giuliano Bekor, Marcus Doyle, Chris Levine, Gered Mankowitz, Anja Niemi, Bert Stern, Alistair Taylor-Young, and Vivian van Blerk amongst others.

Whilst in The Bob Carlos Clarke Room there will be pictures by the legendary photographer – some available to buy for the very first time.
